Local Freight Tariff on the Bal-timore & Ohio Road. In some remarks which we made in this paper on May 15th, in regard to a recent advance on the local freight tariff on the B. & O. R. R., we copied from the Railway World some tables, instituting a comparison between the New York Central and the Baltimore roads in the matter of local charges, which were calculated to place the latter in an unfavorable position. Our attention has been direct ed by some of the representatives of the B. & O. road to what they deem the falls. cies of the article copied from the Railway World, and they also have given some explanation of the recent advance in local rates. Our remarks were made in no captious spirit nor in any unfriendly ng toward the B. & O. R: R., and we gladly take the opportunity to correct any misapprehension or mistake into which we may have been led. It appears that the stations on the New York Central, selected by the Railway World for its comparison, are what are called competing points, generally cities and towns where a large freight business on the Baltimore & Ohio are insignificant. A proper comparison would have shown and competitive points as Martinsborg, Cumberland, Parkersburg, slee, where the special rate has been 17½ cants per hundred pounds on heavy freights for two years past. In fact the tariff under which the Baltimore & Ohio road has been really working (but which has not been published), for the past three years, shows a lower rate than the New York Central, as appears in the table referred to. For instance, by the Central from New York to Batavia, 404 miles, flour 43 cents per barrel; fourth class, 24 cents per hundred pounds. Wheeling to Baltimore, 379 miles, flour 35 to 40 cents per barrel; fourth class, 17½ cents.

A very considerable variation is also shown in the rates to the, different stations on the Central, as for instance, in the marting and before 8 o'clock the such covered prize. She has even persuaded 'Old Finit-Lock' to take the much covered prize. She has even persuaded 'Old Finit-Lock' to take the much covered the much covered the state of the much covered the state. Clarksburg is greatly to be hoped that the people with legistary to be hoped that the people with his provided the much covered the state of the wested question on the 7th of August to think that the disputed (I had almost as also shown in the rates to the, different stations on the Central, as for instance, by the form the subject here seems inclined to the proper description of the competitive points. The cause of the proper description, a distance of but 32 miles greater, 48 cents per harrel is charged, which clearly illustrate the policy of all the lines in regard to competitive points. The cause of the present firends one as it had when the related to competitive points. The cause of the present firends one as it had when the present firends one as it had when the proper harrel is charged, which clearly illustrate the policy of all the lines in regard to competitive points. The cause of the present firends one as it had when the present firends one as is being done, while the stations instanced on the Baltimore & Ohio are insignificant.

tariff of 1864 remains in force, it has been so frequently modified by circulars and orders from the general freight of-fice that it is scarcely recognized in its riginal features, which were adopted when the transportation by rail was somewhat experimental, and does not conform, either in rates or classification.

the road are making every effort to increase their revenue, nor that shippers are frequently so clamorous for lower rates. Most business men are not ignorant of the fact that the through business of the great lines has not been paying an adequate profit, and in view of the general interest of the country would be glad to see the business of the roads placed upon a healthy basis. We submit, however, that the local rates along the line of the B. & O. R. R. have not heretofore been too low, and are confident that a moderate renewal of trade, which must come in the near future, will yield the company a good income from its local trade, even at former rates.

The action of the company in reducing the local tariff from this point in 1874 was gratefully recognized by our merchants, and we believe very largely contributed to the establishment of more cordial relations than had existed before. This friendly spirit we hope to see main.

This friendly spirit we hope to see maintained. A great railway line, like the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, should be usages of the church in Virginia. Accordingly we find him alluding to this subject (among other things) as follows:

Occupying the fearfully responsible osition which I do, says the Bishop, I feel it my duty to lift up my voice against the spirit of worldliness and irreligious which I gives to think in increasing amongst us. More now, perhaps, than ever before within our knowledge the cares of this world and the descitfulness of riches, and the lust of the care of this world and the descitfulness of riches, and cheke the Word and make it unfruitful. Worldliness—the spirit and sentiments, and feabions, and customs, and pleasures, and viscouries of the world—its shows and frivial and extrawagances and dissipations, have come into the church like a flood, and well ugh swept away every mark of difference between the disciples of Christians of Our chirdren—three sons and one daughorized, have come into the church like a flood, and well ugh swept away every mark of difference between the disciples of Christians of Our chirdren—three sons and one daughorized, have come into the church like a flood, and well ugh swept away every mark of difference between the disciples of Christians and other people. This is seen conspicuously in the musical performances in some of our charches, where the praises of God are converted into what night be called a Sunday opers; in the fairs and shows, and plays.

Be fore it comes time to vote on the question, I am fully convinced that Charles to will not get any votes worth naming It is even a matter of surprise and astorishment to know that it calculates to ge any votes in the First and Second Congressional Districts. Clarksburg is central, is easy of ingress and egress, is contral, is easy of ingress and egress, is con conform, either in rates or classification, to the advanced methods of to-day, and should have been thoroughly changed long ago.

We are aware that the business of railroad, like all branches of trade, has not been profitable for several years past, and are not surprised that the officers of the road are making every effort to increase their revenue, nor that shipmonts or a year. Judge Melvin's Father.

Methodist Recorder.

He was a member of the Methodist Protestant Church forty-four years, and an officer in the church most of the time. He was quiet and unassuming, yet willing to assist in the work of the Lord. He suffered for years with nervous rffection, because of which he was often gloomy, but never doubted his conversion. He died in the hope of eternal life. His funeral services were held in the Methodist church, Fairview, conducted by the writer, and were attended by a large congregation of neighbors and friends, among whom he had lived over forty years—never having moved since he commenced business in that place about four children—three sons and one daughter, vix: Hon. Judge Melvin, of the first Judicial District of W. Vax. John H., of Fairview, James A. B., of Hollidaysburg, Pa., and Mrs. Samuel Moore, of Fairview. May his mante fall on his sons. He also leaves a brother, William Melvin, of Eldersville, Pa., and a sister in the west.

The Buttelligence.

Romanism have grown up little by little, and if we would preserve the work-shop and doctrine of our beloved Church unchanged, we must resistevery innovation in the one or the other at its very first appearance.

The Bishop alludes at length to the evil of intemperance in his brief pastoral addressed to the Diocese on this subject.

He trusts the Council may have grace and wisdom to devise some practical and wisdom to devise some practical and effectual means of dealing with this matsuch appearance at the sight of the vessels that cand wisdom to devise some practical and effectual means of dealing with this matter.

In connection with the proceedings of the Conference, we cannot retrain from appending the following item in regard to a very realous lady who seems to be a power in the Virginia Episcopal Church. We find it in the Richmond Dirpatch:

"Everybody, nearly, in Richmond knows Miss Sallie Tompkins, and her famo-as one of the noble women who aided many a poor soldier during the war has spread for over the Southern country. But what it wanted to say about Miss Sallie was some of the Southern country. But what it wanted to say about Miss Sallie was something about her devotion to the Episcopal Church. She's a member of the St. James, Richmond. For a number of years it has been Miss Sallie's habit to an attend the sessions of the Council, and to entertain at her own expense from twenty to fifty delegates. She generally rents a house, turnishes it completely, and keeps it up until the Council adjourns, lancouring to her usual custom, she has rented a house here on Vine street, and furnished it out and out. She couldn't lease any furniture here, so she bought it in Richmond and had it shipped here and you tup. When the Council adjourns she will send it back to Richmond and sell it. Now, who can beat this?"
